

Gluten Intolerance... ...What's It All About?

"Gluten intolerance – is a genetic disorder characterized by abnormal inflammatory responses driven by gluten (a wheat protein) and related proteins from rye and barley. Clinically, the disease presents in a broad spectrum of symptoms varying from minimal muscle and joint pain, mouth and eye dryness down to full blown celiac disease and correspondent anemia, malabsorption syndrome, chronic diarrhea and weight loss. Gluten intolerance is commonly associated with various rheumatologic and autoimmune diseases, including osteoporosis, pseudogout, Sjogren's syndrome, lupus and multiple sclerosis."

-Definition provided by the Institute of Specialized Medicine

"At Sonoma Market we are sensitive to the needs of our customers and take a proactive approach in buying product and providing information that will be of benefit to them. Gluten intolerance has recently become an important topic in the health industry. At Sonoma Market we stock over 800 gluten free items and have created a gluten free list with coordinates to more easily locate product in our Sonoma store."
